

Caernarfon and Denbigh Herald November 24 2011

Site launches school into 21st Century

A media savvy primary school have advanced into cyberspace by launching a brand new website.

Caernarfon's Ysgol Maesincla's new site has been under construction for the past year and was officially unveiled recently.

As well as featuring fun games and learning materials for pupils, the bi-lingual web space also features news from the school, an events diary, photos, information about staff and even a section for parents.

What is even more impressive is that the site is currently racking up around 20,000 hits a month.

Teacher Anna Eifion Jones said: "Both I and Gareth Jones (a former teacher at the school) spent about a year working on the project in partnership with Cwmni Delwedd based at the Galeri.

"It has been a fantastic project to work, the pupils have played a big role in the site's development and we are delighted with the amount of attention it is attracting already."

To view the site log on to www.ysgolmaesincla.org